

Bigger and better Japan's number one racecourse

Tokyo Racecourse, home of the Derby, the Japan Cup and other G1 races, stands at the "forehand" of racing in Japan. With a turf course measuring up to 2,156.1 meters in length and a final stretch of 525.9 meters from the 4th corner to the finishing post, this large-scale racecourse offers sensational racing thrills.

The new Fuji View Stand completed in 2007, a glass "Horse Preview" tunnel linking the Parade Ring with the racing tracks, the world's largest-standard Multiscreen Turf Vision, facilities for children, and much, much more.

Tokyo Racecourse creates the atmosphere of a massive amusement park.

Reserved seating in the Fuji View Stand

Open-air reserved seating on the 5th and 6th floors, with a direct view of the action on the home stretch. On a fine day, you can see Mount Fuji beyond the 1st corner.

Pedestrian bridge to the racecourse

A direct link from nearby "Fuchu Keiba Seimon-mae" and "Fuchu Honmachi" stations, with a covered walkway if it rains.

Entrance

The gorgeous entrance will make you think you're in a hotel lobby!

Okunitama Shrine

Various events are held during the Grand Festival of this shrine near Tokyo Racecourse, held from April 30th to May 6th every year. One of these is the Komakurabe horseracing event held on May 3rd, featuring horses from Tokyo Racecourse.

Mount Takao

About 30 minutes from Fuchu on the Keio Line is "Meiji-no-Mori Takao Quasi-National Park". With its magnificent natural setting and some breathtaking views from its summit, this is a favorite spot for mountain climbers. A cable car and walking trails also make the mountain highly accessible for more leisurely walks.
